

FOUR GENERATIONS SERVING YOU AND YOUR LOVED ONES.

Bishop Edwin Dee Olpin

The Olpin Family is a Utah tradition that dates back to the era of hand-sewn caskets and slow-stepping, black-plumed horses on the dirt road leading from town. For four generations, our family's traditions were handed down from parents to children. We don't use horses any more, but we still remember the little things like compassion, trust, and reverence, that we might serve you and many generations to come.

To help you and your loved ones prepare for your funeral before the need arises, call or write for our free planning guide, Toward Peace of Mind, a gift from our family to yours.

placed bitter criticism and a light at home.

The Russian president also said Ukraine's agreement to relinquish half of the Black Sea Fleet in return for debt relief was inevitable because Ukraine could not pay for gas and oil received from Russia.

The agreements announced by the two presidents on Friday boosted Yeltsin's political authority and humiliated Kravchuk, who gave up one of the most important symbols of Ukraine's newly won independence.

But the Ukrainian parliament, which must ratify any nuclear deal, wants to hold on to the entire nuclear arsenal.

Yeltsin was quick to press home his achievement in a national television appearance Saturday evening.

"There has been a breakthrough on the issues of nuclear weapons," he said. "We think the matter is resolved."

Along its northeast border with Armenia and Iran, Turkey's neighbor to the east, has sent forces to its northern border with Azerbaijan to check further Armenian advances.

"If one spot of Nakhichevan is touched, I go to the parliament and obtain authorization for war," Ciller said in an interview with the Istanbul newspaper Hurriyet.

Nakhichevan has a common border of seven miles with Turkey. Referring to a 1921 border treaty with the former Soviet Union, Ciller said Turkey had guarantor power over Nakhichevan, which is part of Azerbaijan but separated from it by Armenia.

The prime minister said she would discuss the crisis with Russian officials during her trip to Moscow next week.

Col. Dogu Silahcioglu, spokesman for the Turkish Chief of Staff, said in a statement Saturday that the Turkish army was developing plans to activate units and transfer personnel for a possible conflict.
